If you have ever tried working with the Windows Encrypted File System EFS you will welcome the announcement that DESlock+ V3 is available in public beta – free for 60 days, and the final release will be free to personal users. It makes it easy to add encryption to files, folders, emails and compressed archives, integrates with the Windows XP/2000/2003 Shell and comes with plug-in components for Outlook and Lotus Notes. It requires no DESkey USB Token to operate, although adding one does provide maximum security. Instead, a file key stored on a disk or USB RAM device can be used.
